

The Chinese Premier, Wen Jiabao, in his much-publicized visit to India ended up getting all that he had intended whereas India has got nothing in return. In this 'new chapter of friendships', the old policy of appeasing and surrendering to China has again been followed by India. We could not even bring China on to the discussion table on the issues which have

The Chinese Premier, Wen Jiabao, in his much-publicized visit to India ended up getting all that he had intended whereas India has got nothing in return. In this 'new chapter of friendships', the old policy of appeasing and surrendering to China has again been followed by India. We could not even bring China on to the discussion table on the issues which have

The Chinese Premier, Wen Jiabao, in his much-publicized visit to India ended up getting all that he had intended whereas India has got nothing in return. In this 'new chapter of friendships', the old policy of appeasing and surrendering to China has again been followed by India. We could not even bring China on to the discussion table on the issues which have been a cause of constant worry for us. China's increasing interference in POK, its increasing help to Pakistan for its anti-India activities, insurgency by the Chinese army into many parts of India, its claim to ownership of many parts, China's constant support to so many terrorist and separatist organisations, human rights violation in Tibet, its support to anti-India activities in Nepal, unclear policies on the water-sharing of rivers are so many issues, these are issues, without whose resolution, we cant even think of having normal relations, leave alone, a 'friendship treaty.' Our leaders more concerned about a place in the Security Council. We have not been able to get anything from China on any of these issues. China is only interested in India's market, which it has already captured illegally. Now, it wants to capture it completely and legally and in this visit, it has been successful to a large extent. China wants to become the biggest economic superpower in the world and it needs to dominate India's market towards this goal. In this visit, Wen has been successful to a very large extent in making a dent in the Indian market. Leave alone, giving us back something in return, Wen, did not even agree to sit in discussion on any of India's problems vis-à-vis China. This was an important stop of Wen in its world-conquering tour.

Prior to China, USA, too has successfully cornered a large chunk of India's market. If we think about the Obama visit, one understands that even Obama made a fool of us, we came to know about it only later. In the case of China, Wen did not even mince his words and let us know in straight terms that we were minnows in comparison to China when it came to foreign policy. The spineless policies of our leaders will take us nowhere. Our country, which has already surrendered on the issue of terrorism, will now end up becoming a lackey of these two superpowers-America and China.